

- Smaller sizes are tumbled to leave a radius on the edges and weathered appearance. Size variation on tumbled stone varies more than the untumbled field tiles.
 - It is not usually necessary to seal slate outdoors. However, as with any natural stone tiles, slate installed indoors should be sealed with a high quality water based penetrating sealer.
 - A variety of mosaics are offered with this product line. Mosaics feature water-soluble glue on the backing mesh that will not interfere with adhesion when used with water-containing installation adhesives.
 - Since slate is a naturally rough stone, PietraArt Slate is gauged (machined) on one side to create a thickness within a defined parameter and provide a flat backing for ease of installation. The product will vary in thickness but the range of thickness with gauged slate is less than that of the natural random thickness of stone.
 - To clean slate, brush wall surfaces occasionally to remove dust and "freshen" or dust with dusting attachment of vacuum cleaner. Slate floors can be washed with a detergent and water solution, and rinsed well. They are not damaged by alkali cleaners, but strong solutions are not needed for cleaning. A water-based, self-polishing wax can be applied over a clean, dry, sealed floor for extra protection and shine. Weekly damp mopping with a barely damp mop on a waxed floor will keep it clean for quite a while before the washing with detergent is needed.

- Flaking and shaling are an inherent part of the beauty of natural slate and should be taken into consideration.
 - Since PIETRAART Slate is a natural stone product, no claims will be accepted for variations in shade or appearance.

later your slate installation will look as new as the day it was installed. When sealed, slate does not wear, burn, stain or fade - repair costs become a thing of the past. Slate floors require little more than an occasional sweeping and damp mopping. Periodically a sealer can be applied, which will bring out the slate's naturally rich colors and further ease its upkeep. (See manufacturer's recommendations regarding application schedule.)

Slate is a soft porous stone, surprisingly comfortable to walk on in shoes, socks, stockings - even bare feet! The porosity of slate adds another surprising benefit - warmth. Slate floors retain heat, rather than reflecting it, like ceramic tiles, marble or granite.

The natural texture of PIETRAART SLATE makes it skid resistant, even when wet. This feature makes it a natural choice for bathrooms, foyers, kitchens and stairs.

With addition of the stunning PIETRAART SLATE decoratives, including the dynamic Medallions, your design possibilities are truly without limit.
